STATE CAPITOL NEWS

By MELVIN LORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 223 —(UP)— California faces the fact that unemployment relief no longer is a temporary problem in the opinion of Ralph E. Jenny, former chairman of the state relief commission.

Jenny suggested that some type of public industry must be provided which promises eventual freedom from support of taxpayers, pointing out that it is evident private industry probably never again can absorb the unemployed.

As evidence of the critical relief situation, it was necessary for the state to approve an extra $2,000,000 for relief purposes this month, a total of $4,000,000 for the 31-day period .

It was estimated that $2,000,000 of state funds would be needed for relief in February, and then $1,500,000 per month for the remainder of the current fiscal year.

As a result of the necessity of selling warrants to provide cash for relief work, coupled with other factors, the state's outstanding registered warrant debt now stands at $47,900,442, according to State Controller Ray L. Riley.

Riley said that during the first six months of the current fiscal year, income from the sales tax amounted to $33,883,645 as compared with $26,959,696 a year ago. Income from the franchise tax during a comparable period jumped from $1,894,153 to $6,691,812, and gasoline tax revenue increased from $18,518,595 to $21,887,233.

The department of motor vehicles now is empowered to collect the new state tax on motor vehicles from war veterans as well as everyone else.

The state supreme court ruled that the tax law is constitutional and declared the levy is a privilege tax and not a property tax. As a result it does not come under the $1,000 property exemption allowed California veterans.

The tax, Amounting to $1.75 per $100 valuation must be paid along with license fees before January 31 or a 100 per cent penalty will be added.

Two more investigations into state agencies are under way. One was based on charges of asserted irregularities in the administration of the state unemployment service byRoy S. Stockton, chief.

The other dealt with charges that pay increases as high as $40 a week had been given employes of the state relief administration since last March. The pay increases averaged a total of $1,638 a month.

In ordering an investigation, Gov. Frank F. Merriam also demanded immediate reduction in relief administration overhead of all kinds.

Work Started On "The Country Beyond"

Filmland's first invasion of the snow country began last night with the arrival of a 20th Century-Fox company in Truckee to shoot scenes for the James Oliver Curwood outdoor classic, "The Country Beyond."

The cast and technicians, totalling 53 persons, will make their headquarters here for at least two weeks while they film sequences supposedly laid in the Canadian wilds. Director Eugene Forde is in charge of the location unit.

Players here are Rochelle Hudson, who has the leading feminine role of the picture, Paul Kelly, Robert Kent, Alan Dinehart, Alan Hale and Paul McVey. Kent is a recent discovery of Darryl F. Zanuck, 20th Century-Fox production chief, and is making his screen debut as the leading man in this picture.

Star of the film is Buck, the 190-pound St. Bernard who leaped to stardom with his one performance in "The Call of The Wild," a few scenes of which were made here also. Cast opposite Buck as the canine "heavy" of "The Country Beyond," is Prince, a Great Dane. With the dogs here is Carl Spitz, their trainer-owner, nationally-known dog authority.

PACT MAY END TRAIL DISPUTE

Prospects of an agreement to keep open the Tahoe-Yosemite Trail in the Meeks Bay section and at the same time protect the land owners from damage are the aftermath of a conference bewteen James and George Murphy of Sacramento and the board of supervisors at Placerville.

The supervisors called the meeting at the request of sportsmen's organizations, which fear the closing of the trail will prevent members from reaching desirable hunting and fishing areas.

The Murphys explained they were forced to close the trail because of inconsiderate persons who caused property damage. They said the trail is open at all times to the forest service, but not to the general public.

Dr. L. B. Rantz, El Dorado Rod and Gun Club president, who also represented the Sacramento-Sierra Sportsmens Association spoke. The discussion resulted in an agreement for all parties to meet on the site in the Spring to attempt to work out a plan which will permit sportsmen to use the trail and at the same time protect the owners from damage or annoyance.

Students Show High Percentage of Deafness

Mrs. Isabel Hefelfinger, county health nurse, who recently completed a test of 719 children from both high and elementary schools in the county with an audiometer, has given the following result of the tests.

The pupils of 27 elementary schools throughout the county and the Nevada City high school and Meadow Lake Union high school were examined.

In the elementary schools pupils above the fourth grade only were given the tests. There were 518 of these pupils and 273 high school pupils examined.

Out of the total of 791 children, there were only 157 pupils whose hearing was perfect as recorded by the audiometer, which measures the hearing by units designated as decibels. There were 434 pupils who had a hearing loss of more than nine decibels in both ears. There were 200 with the same loss in one ear. Mrs. Hefelfginger stated that this is a high hearing loss which will increase as the child grows older unless treatment is given, and if the cause of the defect is found it can often times be cured.

Parents of children who were given the tests will receive reports later if they have not already received them.

STATE OFFICIAL THANKS SEAWELL FOR WPA EFFORTS

State Senator Jerrold L. Seawell's efforts in obtaining WPA projects for Placer, Nevada and Sierra counties are greatly appreciated by G. D. Nordenholt, state director of the department of natural resources.

In a recent letter to Seawell, Nordenholt thanks him for the cooperation and help in securing the projects for the three counties.

The letter reads as follows:

"I want to thank you for your cooperation and your wonderful help in assisting us to get WPA projects for Nevada, Placer and Sierra Counties.

In Nevada County, we have a $123,750 project, consisting of one suppression crew barracks, one five car garage, one ranger house, one ranger barracks and one warehouse and 80 miles of road betterment.

From the Nevada City Camp, we have a $74,250 project and will build at Auburn one ranger house, one two room office, one warehouse 30 x 80, 122 miles of road betterment and roadside hazard reduction.

In Placer County, we have a $99,000 project to be worked out of Applegate Camp. This has not been opened yet due to lack of men. Also, we have a $4,200 project to build a telephone line from Howel Mt. to Pine Grove with a spike camp out of Nevada City.

In Sierra County, we have a $22,405 project to build a new hatchery on the Yuba River, consisting of a hatchery building, superintendents cottage, a garage, diversion dams, septic tank and sewer system. This has not been started because of the lack of men at present, and even if

Birthday Ball And Card Party Planned

The President's Birthday Ball and Card Party, the proceeds of which are for the benefit of the infantile paralysis fund, will be held in the Masonic Hall and Odd Fellows Hall on next Thursday night, January 30th.

Dan Kneis of Hobart Mills, chairman and his committee are perfecting plans for the dance and card party. The committee decided to hold both the dance and card party, as was done last year, those who do not care to attend the dance may spend their evening at the card party. The card party will be held in the Odd Fellows Hall and prizes will be awarded for high scores and refreshments will be served.

Mr. Kneis and his committee are asking for the backing of the community and region for this very worthy cause. Last year 70 per cent of the proceeds of the ball and card party after all expenses were paid was placed in a fund here to be used in helping infantile paralysis cases in this region. The other 30 per cent was sent to the Georgia Springs Foundation for the national fight against this disease.

The President was a victim of infantile paralysis 15 years ago. It is a thing nearest his heart to help the children of the country who have been stricken as he was stricken and who are not able to help themselves as he has been helped.

This is the third annual birthday ball of the President. For the suffering of infantile paralysis victims, one notes an immediate sympathy. The process of rehabilitation ofter one is stricken is a slow one.

Patients must be kept happy. They can overcome these physical handicaps. The money raised by these balls throughout the nation will help finance the nation wide battle against infantile paralysis.

Plan to attend the birthday ball and card party. In addition to an evening of entertainment you will have the consciousness that you have done your part to help along a great humanitarian work.

The winter sports park was kept busy all day providing skiis and toboggans for the visitors.

Last of Railroad Wreckage Removed

The Southern Pacific cleared away the last of the wreckage Wednesday morning at the scene of the slide which struck the westbound Pacific Limited near Eder west of Truckee on Wednesday afternoon, January 15th.

Using acetylene torches, work crews cut the demolished car into sections so it could be removed.

After the debris of the avalanche and wreckage of the coach was removed, it was necessary to put the crews to work chopping out the ice that had formed over the tracks.

ICE PALACE PROJECT STARTS TUESDAY

Project Is a Continuation of SERA Project Started Last June. Sum of $11,835 was Recently Allocated by the WPA for this Work.

Work will be resumed on the ice palace project on next Tuesday morning and men who have been employed on the forestry project, which is now closed will be transferred to this job. Fred Marsh, W. P. A. official will be here on Tuesday to get the work started.

The project which is sponsored by the Truckee Public Utility District consists of excavating for the foundation and the masonry walls of the ice rink and the construction of the rock walls 25 feet high of native rock, and for laying the concrete over the surface of the rink proper.

The ice palace will be constructed in a circular design. The large circle will have an ice rink 150 feet in diameter, a circular room in the rear of this will have a huge fire place and warming room and in the two circular rooms in the front of the building will be the public rooms and a club room for members.

Considerable headway was made with the clearing of the ground and excavating for the foundation and some of the foundation had been built before the project was closed last August due to the termination of all SERA projects.

The sum of $11,835 was recently allocated by the WPA for this project and the work has been held up until men could be certified.

The completion of the ice palace will be a valuable asset to the town for the extention of their winter sports facilities, as there is a great demand for ice skating by the people who come here during the winter sports season.

Masons To Hold Joint Installation

Los Angeles Will Drain Mono Lake

SACRAMENTO, Jan. 16 —(UP)— One of interior California's most prominent pleasure resorts will be converted into an alkali desert within 10 years in order that half a million people in Los Angeles may have water for domestic purposes.

When the City of Los Angeles condemned property in the vicinity of Mono Lake, on the east side of the Sierra in Mono county, to divert water from Rush and Leevining creeks and tributaries, it placed a death sentence upon the famous bird sanctuary and summer resort.

The two creeks and their tributaries furnish 90 per cent of the water in Mono lake. When their flow is diverted into an aqueduct which will serve Los Angeles, the level of the lake will descend until there is nothing left but a small pond surrounded by alkali and salty flats.

Mono lake now is 10 miles wide, 15 miles long and has a maximum depth of 150 feet. Situated at an elevation of 6,426 feet, in a depression surrounded by lofty mountains, it attracts thousands of visitors annually.

The water in the lake is so filled with salts and alkali that it is unfit for domestic or irrigation uses, but it provides a home for ducks and geese, and a unique place for bathing and boating. Fishing in the streams of that high country is excellent, and resorts at Mono lake have prospered.

When the size of the lake has shrunk to one-tenth its present vol-

AAA COMMENT

Recognized as a major development, the action of the United States supreme court declaring the agricultural adjustment administration act unconstitutional dropped on highly controversial ground as far as California newspapers were concerned.

Not a few papers designated the decision as having the most political significance of anything since the Civil War.

"It must be noted," observed the Los Angeles Daily News, "that there are those in authority who still hold that the president's position was sound; that the legislation by which the AA was fortified was valid."

While the Inglewood News did not quarrel with the court's decision, a question of the advisability of the court's power was raised when the publication said:

"We have no particular quarrel with the tribunal's opinion on the constitutionality of the AAA. It may be that this act is, in fact, unconstitutional. But we do believe that the supreme court should be required on acts of such moment to reach a unanimous verdict."

Along this line the Santa Paula Chronicle pointed out that "another result is likely to be an attack upon the supreme court's assumption of autocratic power over the nation's laws."

What ever the motive behind legislation of a questionable constitutional nature, the historic decision of the supreme court on the AAA is certain to be a large factor in the presidential and congressional campaign," said The Long Beach Press Telegram.

To this, the Bakersfield Californian added:

"It follows that the immediate problem, the solution of which is left in the lap of the president and congress, is to make such provision as will give to agriculture the same consideration which other industries have enjoyed through many years past."

The Santa Ana Register raised this point:

"Now that the supreme court again has ruled against federal regulation and planning—let us, as Al Smith says, 'look at the records.' Let us see whether or not congress has been successful in the regulating and planning it has had charge of. Let us see whether or not Thomas Jefferson was right when he said, 'The best governed nation is the least governed nation.'"

KIPLING IS DEAD

A voice that brightened the world with inspiring poetry and masterful prose for more than half a century has passed into perpetual silence. Rudyard Kipling died last week.

They say England did not give him his due, since he was never named poet laurete of the British Empire, and was never granted knighthood. But a truer recognition came to him, recognition far beyond anything any one country could grant. His memory and his poems will live in the hearts of millions the world over, and will endure indelibly on the pages of literature.

His was principally the rollicking, swashbucking voice with the temper of his famous line, 'a rag, a bone and a hank o' hair." But many of his lines had about them an inspiring quality of greatness, as in his Recessional with its "Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet; Lest we forget, lest we forget."

Most appropriate now, perhaps, is his own sentiment about death, expressed in L'Envoi:

"When earth's last picture is painted and the tubes are twisted and dried,

"When the oldest colours have faded, and the youngest critic has died,

"We shall rest, and faith, we shall need it—lie down for an aeon or two,

'Till the master of all good workmen shall set us to work anew."

OUR MONEY'S WORTH

Once more—have you got your new auto license plates? The deadline is nearing. It is January 30, after which time your bill will be just double what it is now. And that means what it says this year. There will be no extension.

If you have got them, and have pungled up that ad valorem tax plus a license fee, perhaps you are in a mood to consider the problems ahead for the California motorist who wants to insure full return for his money he's laid on the line.

With returning prosperity, gas tax receipts are increasing. The highway fund has grown fat. But at the same time, the fund for general state expenses has grown lean. California is being operated on I. O. U.'s, and faces a deficit of nearly $80,000,000.

The temptation to dip into gas tax funds that this situation offers to lawmakers is obvious. It hurts them politically to vote new taxes. On the November ballot, there will probably be a constitutional amendment putting gas tax funds forever behind their reach. Putting this through is one job facing the motorist.

Another job for him is to put through a fuel tax on those commercial vehicles which now dodge the gas levy by burning crude oil in their Diesel motors. And still another job is to get a new deal on the whole problem of the overabundance of commercial vehicles that crowd the highways and wear them down.

In this respect it is interesting to know that one of those big passenger busses weighs 28,250 pounds. That is more than 14 tons, more than nine times the weight of the average auto. The big busses are 33 feet long, eight feet wide, and fully as high as the law will permit. All of which makes it easy to see why we don't want more of them than are absolutely necessary to public convenience.

Taking the motorists' position as a whole in California today, there is no reason for abject despair. Conditions could be much worse, as indeed they are in some other states. But vigilance, a knowledge of his problems, high interest in them, and more vigilance are necessary if the motorists is to get full measure for his money.

North of the 40° Meridian

ENTERTAINED BY AN EAST INDIAN CHIEF

Up the six hundred steps through the gates, on to the flagged street, past the thatched shrine of the ancestor-gods, into the house of Kanoloo, we went.

Into the great central room of the Chief's house we climbed, going up a ladder which led from under the building into this wide upper hall, which was most beautiful. The walls were of polished wood hung about with tusks of boars and the horns of deer, of which the antlers had but six tines at most. Big Chinese plates were suspended from the raftered ceiling, some being enclosed in wicker baskets. Others hung revealed, their colours blending with the blue and old rose painted bowls which also came from China. These bowls were used for the washing of the hands of guests after food.

There were no windows, but a kind of wide lattice ran round one side of the hall. Below the lattice was the large curved wooden seat of the Chief and of his sons, the seat being raised above the floor by long, shallow steps.

The fireplace was very handsome. It stood on carved legs of wood, raised from the ground, and its sides were supported by wooden pillars. It came far out into the room; in its center stood a brazier wherein was the fire. The tall image of a god was near. Beyond stood the peeping women of the house, watching us with dark eyes, their small heads shaved closely, save where, in the centre of the head, a knot of hair was allowed to grow.

Kanoloo had his warriors. He offered to show us their method of war dance and of fighting. Then he left us to clothe himself in his warrior dress.

When we had arrived in the morning he had been wearing a coloured jacket of stiff material and a pleated loin cloth; round the thick dark hair that fell on to his neck he had wound a coloured cloth.

When he reappeared in his martial dress it seemed we lived on another star or in another age. He shone with gold. A band of the yellow metal crowned his head, from it rose flowers of gold, rudely formed, but pleasing. Heavy circles of gold were on his wrists, on his neck were ornaments of leaf gold. His jacket was of thick woven stuff, striped red, blue, white and yellow, and below it he wore balls of coloured wools to make the garment stand well out. A brilliant loin cloth fell below this jacket. Most remarkable of all was his sword sheathed in gold, with a handle shaped like a monkey's head with eyes of rubies, and enriched with tigers' teeth. He was amazing and splendid, and as dignified as in his simple clothing but not more so. He then called on his men, and we pressed against the open squares in the room of our reception, to see them gathering below.

Like a play from Shakespeare, they prefaced their dancing with a speech. They assured us that they meant no harm, that all would end in peace, and then the war dance began.—Violet Clifton, in "Islands of Queen Wilhelmina."

Politically Speaking

By GEARGE E. HELMER
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

SACRAMENTO, Jan 23 —(UP)— Local option, state liquor stores, return of prohibition, higher and lower liquor taxes, restriction of licenses and transfer of administration to a separate board were among the outstanding subjects discussed when the senate and assembly interim liquor committee met in the capitol.

Committee members and witnesses alike admitted there were many things wrong with the present liquor act and its enforcement, but they advanced few definite recommendations which were expected to be workable.

Liquor dealers, distributors and manufacturers were almost unanimous on some points—opposition to local option, transfer of administration from the board of equalization to an independent commission, lower taxes and restriction of licenses. But they offered very few suggestions as to how these changes could be affected—particularly the restriction of licenses.

Committee members believed two of the outstanding points which will come before the next legislature are local option and transfer of administration to a separate board. Dry leaders are starting a drive for local option as the first step of their hoped-for return to prohibition. This is likely to develop into a major fight during the next session, observers believed.

Opposition to continued board of equalization control of the liquor act appeared so widespread that it was considered almost a certainty that 1937 would witness the transfer of the controversial problem to a separate commission.

While the committee took no action on any point, it discussed liquor advertising in newspapers and magazines and asked whether such advertising did not tend to increase drinking by youths and excite the ire of drys. There was some mention of possible legislation prohibiting liquor advertising in California publications, but no discussion of liquor advertising in national magazines which are distributed widely in this and other states and about which the legislature could do nothing.

Senator Culbert Olson's desire to have the state enter into the retail liquor store business appeared to have little support from the interim committee. The proposal received no encouragement during the committee discussion.

One perplexing problem was that of limiting licenses to, for example, one for each 1,000 inhabitants. There was considerable support given this proposal, but no one suggested how the state could accomplish the change. It was pointed out that half the present licensees would have to be abolished, and no one seemed desirous of assuming the responsibility for saying who should not be permitted to retain licenses.

When the electorate approved the repeal act, it provided for almost unlimited licenses. Had the restriction idea been carried out from the start, committee members admitted the entire situation might be entirely different now. But to put it into effect by closing the businesses of several thousand dealers would be a step which caused the legislators to shudder.

The old problem of state vs. local enforcement found opponents and advocates about equally divided. Some witnesses demanded to know why the present act, supposedly limiting sale of drinks to bona fide restaurants, was not enforced. All agreed that local police were supposed to enforce the liquor law as well as all other local and state laws, but admitted there was little hope of this under the present setup.

It was suggested that if there were fewer places licensed, the enforcement problem would be simplified. Dealers insisted that if the state liquor tax were cut in half, from 80 to 40 cents a gallon, there would be less bootlegging and people would buy better quality liquor and the entire aspect of the beverage business would be improved. Senator Ralph Swing, on the other hand, suggested that if the tax were increased to $1, there would be more money for enforcement.

The liquor subject proved to be so full of ramifications that there was little telling what the committee would finally recommend to the next legislature. Transfer of control to a separate board was expected to be one major proposal.

TAHOE REGION NEWS

By Swanee

The first Radio Amateur Night held on Friday at the Tahoe school auditorium by the Tahoe Ski Club proved a social, as well as a financial success, over $26 being cleared despite the small charge of admission and difficulty of travel. The storm ceased obligingly on Friday and the day was beautiful although freezing temperatures prevailed that night. The highway department had the roads south of town well cleared by the large Sno-Go before the night was over, greatly facilitating progress in that direction.

Charles Swanson, imitating the famous Major Bowes, introduced President Ernie Pomin who delivered a short address of welcome from the stage, starting off the show. The spirit of foolishness ran rampant throughout the evening and was seemingly greatly relished by a large and appreciative audience.

The first number was a selection by the amateur orchestra whose instructions beforehand were to see who could make the most hideous and unmusical noises—irregardless of the audience nerves. They were to be given the gong three times before stopping. It must have been pretty terrible from a ringside seat. Six feminine voices each shrilled a different song simultaneously, someone banged on a bass drum, a violin squeaked painfully, the piano player drummed a waltz and an old phonograph wheezed out a fox trot—a musical pot-pourri, to put it mildly. But the audience lived through it and begged for more. The group partly redeemed themselves by a civilized rendition of 'When the Moon Comes Over the Mountains,' bringing down the curtain on the first act.

Miss Helen Worden, Tahoe's diminutive new ski queen, was next in line with an appropriate recitation, followed by Brush Mandeville and David Renner who put on a one act skit written by themselves, titled, "Why Radio Announcers Get Gray." Despite the fact that David forgot some of his lines, due to stage fright, they succeeded in presenting some of the numerous trials of the suave ether-wave dispensers, being restrained just in the nick of time, from taking the stage microphone to pieces. They all received a nice round of applause for their efforts.

Miss Florence Vernon and Dolores Arguello then offered a piano duet which was well received.

Mrs. Jewel Bechdolt sprang a real surprise on the assemblage when she appeared as an Italian organ grinder, with a simulated organ, [illegible], tin cup for donations and all the trimmings. Her make up was perfect for the role with patched trousers, green felt hat, her husband's coat worn inside out, and a facial characterization which would have done credit to a professional. In fact, it was all so perfect one could almost smell the garlic on her breath. She sang "Won't somebody please buy my bananas?" although, yes, she had no bananas.

Marilyn Hinkle and Beccy Brodehl, appropriately announced as the "Toothpick Sisters," next charmed with a recent popular song hit, minus piano accompaniment, hesitating long enough between verses to beg "Major Bowes" permission to go home and come back next Sunday "because they were so nervous". Being part of their act, they were not disappointed at his refusal and finished amid hearty applause.

Stella Watson undoubtedly proved herself the most popular comedienne of the evening in her act which next followed. Her costume was an imported creation consisting of a huge white, silk fringed shawl embroidered in pink roses, with a smaller Spanish lace shawl draped gracefully about her blonde hair (over an inverted lampshade) and a full lavender, moire silk evening gown trimmed with a row of wide transparent net around the bottom was greatly enhanced by the long tight, white underwear she wore over her stockings, reaching clear to her ankles and tied with bright green ribbon bows. What with her generous measure of make-up even her best friends couldn't tell her. Accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Eleanor Swanson she sang "Love's Old Sweet Song," But it was not her singing which convulsed the audience, but her dancing—her nonsensical dancing and facial expressions and the incongrous long white underwear tied with green bows which showed advantageously as she ricocheted and pirouetted about across the stage. At the conclusion of her performance an usher presented her with a large bouquet of roses and chrysanthemums from the foot of the stage, amidst cheers. The audience seemed indifferent to the fact that the flowers were made of crepe paper and that she had sent them to herself, as they banged their feet and clapped for an encore. One chorus of "Garden of Old Fashioned Roses" with more foolish dancing, followed at the end of which she tossed her bouquet to the crowd. Still more applause was met with an hysterical rendition of "Chop-Sticks" by the twosome, which earned for them the cowbell gong and cleared the stage.

The last number of the evening was capably enacted by Harry Johanson who created, by means of robes, skins, snowshoes and eight of his beautiful huskies, a perfect setting for the three long Robert Service tales in poetry which he recited. Dressed in the authentic fur regalia of the Eskimo, (in spite of the steamheated atmosphere) Harry's audience sympathetically sweated through the trio of poems with him, as he hesitated occasionally to wipe the perspiration from his brow. He reeled off without an error "The Tale of the Parson's Son," "The Shooting of Dan McGrew" and "The Cremation of Sam McGee." The most remarkable part of his act, perhaps was the perfect behavior of his huskies, who, except for a mild curiosity at the outset, lie or sat perfectly still throughout the entire performance. It proved a popular form of entertainment, judging by the applause which followed.

President Ernest Pomin then presented to the local ski club members present their new registration cards which wound up the program. Refreshments and dancing to the radio concluded the entertaining evening.

Other acts had been booked, which for one reason or another failed to materialize. Most disappointing of all was the failure of "Red" A. M. Anderson to present his much heralded "Spring Dance." Keenest regret was voiced by all, many folks having come especially to see this one feature number alone. But unfortunately, Red not only irreparably tore his beautiful gauze veiling, so necessary in the dance, but also fell while practicing some intricate steps at his home last week, dislocating his nerve center, which more than likely accounts for the cold tremors which attacked his pedal extremities on Friday night. It is hoped he can be prevailed upon to perform at the next Amateur night to be held in the near future.

Howard Bernad was to have rendered a piano solo but disappionted. Marie Henry was to have tripped off a "Highland Fling" for the customers, but decided the program was long enough so is saving it till next time. And Clarence Vernon and Bub Atherton, both previously requested to prepare numbers, were ready, but through some regrettable error were not called. We'll be glad to give them first place on the next show.

And a next time there will be ere long, for everyone enjoyed such a hearty laugh and good time that the club is planning another real soon. Various groups are already working out details of stunts to be offered at a bigger and better amateur night. If you have an act to volunteer, get in touch with Marie Henry, secretary of the Ski Club at Tahoe City.

Several improvements can be made next time, one notably the serving of the refreshments immediately after the performance, in order that those who do not wish to remain for cards or dancing may eat and depart.

Watch the Tahoe news column Don't miss the Lake Tahoe Ski Club's next Amateur night performance.

The Tahoe Ski Club received invitations from the Aurora Ski Club of Red Wing, Minnesota, who are celebrating their 50th anniversary on Feb. 1st and 2nd, and also from Jack Lynch of the Ogden, Utah Ski Club who invites as many as can come to their meet on Feb. 22nd, offering to take care of all personally on their arrival. Unfortunately, the latter date is the date of Tahoe's meet so it is unlikely any contestants will attend either. Lynch was a member of a group which came to Tahoe last year to attend our meet and made many friends while here.

Those who will be sent from the Tahoe club to compete in the Mt. Shasta meet at McCloud will include Walter Mandeville in Class B; Junior Henry, Carl Bechdolt, and David Renner in Class C; Charles and Oliver Henrikson, Billie Bechdolt and James Worden in Class D and Miss Kathleen Anderson in the Women's cross country. They will leave Tahoe on Friday, January 31st and return the following Sunday night.

Sig Ulland has returned to the Mt. Shasta Club and the furore caused by his recent attempt to join the Tahoe Ski Club died down. Sig, who is especially fond of the Tahoe region and has many friends here, preferred staying in this locality because of the wonderful snow conditions, but returned to his old club when he learned through Arnold Weber, President of the California Ski Association that in order to enter competition in sanctioned meets under the banner of the Tahoe Club he must have first given the Ski Association a three month's notice, his residence here for that length of time an absolute requisite under the rules and regulations of the association.

Another rock slide occurred on the Emerald Bay highway some time ago and the road still remains blocked. It was rumored that the highway department would start the operation of clearing it this week some time. Beautiful weather which brought a total of 38 inches of snow and 8.32 inches of precip. now prevails after the ten day storm. Snow on the level ranges all the way to four and five feet deep, with more in outlying sections and on the mountains.

Al Fanger of Tahoe who winters in Sacramento, was a visitor in town last week end. He is a busy person these days, conducting his radio business. He made a trip to Reno and was to have left for Los Angeles to bring back a load of new radios.

A large crowd of ski club members turned out Sunday last, which was a beautiful day, to help work on the hills and ski courses at Ski Hill Canyon. New C and D jumps are being constructed near the large hill and all will be in first class condition for the coming meet. There will be a ski meeting every Friday night, until further notice, at the clubhouse, instead of every other Friday night as in the past.

Mr. and Mrs. Weller Atherton were hosts last week at their home in town to members of the newly organized 'Thursday Night Dinner Club, a group which meets every two weeks for the purpose of breaking the monotony of Tahoe's long winter season, bringing neighbors together for an evening of cards or social discussion. As hostesses are chosen in alphabetical order Mrs.

Atherton headed the list. A tasty supper was prepared by her, and she was assisted in serving by Mrs. W. A. Simmonds. Those who enjoyed the social evening were Mr. and Mrs. Philip Gallinger, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Simmonds, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Henry, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ernest Pomin of Idlewild, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Vernon, Mrs. Bliss Hinkle, Miss Florence Vernon and Sigurd Ulland.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Claussen of Reno braved the storm on Monday to pay a visit to the Chris Nielsen home in the Sunnyside district.

Mrs. John Stevens has been confined to her bed for a week or more at her home in the Bettencourt Tract with a severe cold.

Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Mayfield dropped cards to their friends in town last week indicating they have visited since their departure from Tahoe at Turlock, Fresno, San Francisco, Los Angeles and even Mexico.

Mrs. A. M. Anderson was hostess on Friday noon to members of the local literary club. Mesdames Ethel Vernon, Amelia Wehrman and Eleanor Swanson were luncheon guests, enjoying an afternoon of literary discussion.

Jake Obexer of Homewood motored to Lincoln on Saturday last to bring back his wife who has been visiting her mother there for the past two weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Lathe are still sojourning with Mrs. Lathe's sister, Mrs. Jack Watt of San Quentin. Ed went to work almost immediately after leaving Tahoe, securing a good position some 10 miles distant which he drives daily.

"Chick" C. W. Welch, formerly of Tahoe may be located by his old friends during the winter months at 111 E. 2nd St. in Reno where he is employed.

A most interesting visitor in town over the week end was Miss Thelma Griffith, affectionately known to her friends as "Rusty". She and George E. Campbell of Oakland were the houseguests of the A. M. Anderson's, having accompanied Miss Kathleen Anderson home from Sacramento Junior College on Saturday night.

Miss Griffith holds the intriguing position of stewartess for United Airlines, flying on the coast division between Oakland and Seattle. Slim and auburn haired with a charming smile and personality, she entertained this reporter for an hour or more with thrilling tales of her air travels, including many amusing anecdotes of famous persons she has encountered during her three years service. She, like all stewartesses on air liners, is a registered nurse having graduated in 1930 from Sacramento County Hospital, later taking advanced courses at Shriner's Hospital in San Francisco, Highland Hospital in Oakland, and Arroyo Sanitarium in Livermore. She was born, raised and educated in Sacramento, where her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Griffith and brother Bud, still reside, but makes her present home in Oakland. Aside from professional accomplishments, Miss Griffith is fast becoming a proficient skier. Although she only started at Cisco last year, she has since won membership in the Ski Runners of the Canadian Rockies ,an organization numbering not more than 500 in the entire world. In order to qualify she had to put in 25 hours on skiis—so she proceeded to accomplish 10 miles of this distance over a difficult course the first day of her visit at Banff, though but a novice. The trip was made with a group of tourist friends to the famous Sunshine Valley where a winter sports carnival was being held. The party was the first ever to attempt the trip on skiis from Banff.

While here she joined the Tahoe Ski Club along with her friend Mr. Campbell, who himself a budding aviator, studying at present at Boeing School of Aeronautics at Oakland Airport.

Miss Griffith plans to vacation at Tahoe with the Anderson family for two weeks prior to the State Meet here in February and will possibly enter competition if her skill continues to improve at it's present rate.

The Andersons will entertain a jolly houseparty over the coming week end, all teachers or school friends of Miss Kathleen Anderson's from Sacramento Junior College. They will include, the Misses Donaldine Grass, Katherine Thomas and

"O Lord, thou art my God; I will exalt thee, I will praise thy name; for thou hast done wonderful things; thy counsels of old are faithfulness and truth." These words from Isaiah comprise the Golden Text to be used Sunday, January 26, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Truth." Included among the Scriptural selections will be: "Pilate therefore said unto him, Art thou a king then? Jesus answered, Thou sayest that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cause came I into the world, that I should bear witness unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice" (John 18:37).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Eternal Truth is changing the universe. As mortals drop off their mental swaddling-clothes, thought expands into expression. 'Let there be light,' is the perpetual demand of Truth and Love, changing chaos into order and discord into the music of the spheres" (p. 255).

Mary Burns, Fugitive

CHAPTER IX

Mary did not, of course, go to the Ajax Hotel. Instead she drove to Denver, where after several days' search she found a job as a "hostess" in the "Golden Arms" taxi dance hall.

The work disgusted her, but she refused to touch the money Don had given her. And she had to eat. Moreover she kept thinking of Powell's invitation to visit his hunting lodge in Canada. If she had enough money for train fare.

She was dancing with a beery-breathed salesman and thinking of these things late one Saturday night when her eyes happened to wander to the door. Framed between the bedraggled portiers stood Harper, his keen eyes searching the floor.

"Oh," gasped Mary to her companion, "Excuse me. I have to go—A telephone call—"

"No you don't," the salesman protested, hanging onto her arm. "I paid for this dance, and by—"

"Pardon me." Harper's brittle voice broke in. "You are mistaken. This is my dance." Before the other could shake the beer fumes out of his head and think up an appropriate comeback the G-Man had taken the trembling girl in his arms and was steering her across the room in a graceful fox trot.

"Listen Burns," he said casually when the music stopped. "How about waltzing over to the manager's office. I want to have a long talk with you."

"Yes, sir," answered Mary, almost glad that the long chase was over.

"There's nothing to be afraid of," said Harper when they were alone in the dusty office. "I just want you to write a note to Wilson saying you'll be up at Powell's mountain lodge on the evening of the twenty-ninth, There's a parole in it for you if you'll actually go up there and wait for him."

"And if I won't?" Mary eyed him miserably.

"Fifteen years minus three months and no time off for good behavior."

"All right," she quavered. "Send me back then. I won't stoop to a cowardly trick like that. I just can't"

"But Wilson's a menace to society. You say you don't love him. He's killed four men and looted heaven knows how many banks and jayrolls. You'd be doing your government a great favor by writing that note—in addition to getting that parole."

"I can't." She shook her head stubbornly.

"All right." Much to her surprise Harper grinned like a boy. "Then I'll have somebody forge the note, using your handwriting. Now all you have to do is to go up to the lodge and act as decoy."

"No—"

"Listen, Burns," he said easily. "You're my and Uncle Sam's prisoner. See. You'll go where I say. Now get on your hat and coat and come along with papa like a good girl."

"Mr. Harper?" Powell eyed his visitor coldly. "I don't believe I've had the pleasure—"

"Yes. I talked to you in the hospital before they took the bandage off your eyes. Glad to see that they're all right again, by the way. As for our talk—it was about Mary Burns, or Alice Brown as she called herself. Remember?"

"Oh- You're the federal agent." Powell extended his hand. "What can I do for you way up here?"

"We're still after Don Wilson," Harper explained as he entered the spacious living room of the lodge and looked around appreciatively at the panelled walls with their handsome mounted trophies and shining gun racks. "Got a tip he's coming this way tonight. Maybe you could help us."

"This is Canada, my dear fellow. Not the United States. I can't quite fancy myself engaged in a kidnaping over the border."

"The Canadian government is cooperating." Harper was nettled. "What's the matter with you, man? Don't you want to help?"

"I came up here for peace and quiet,'" grumbled Powell. "In fact I extended only one invitation. Now you ring in a mob of gangsters."

"It might interest you to know that Mary Burns will be here in a few hours," clipped Harper. "I'm using her as a decoy."

"You dirty skunk!" Powell rose from his chair and advanced toward the other in a fury. "Why don't you stop hounding that poor girl? You've followed her all over the United States. She must be about crazy by this time."

"I'm as sorry as you are about it," answered the G-Man calmly. "But it happens that she's our only contact with Wilson. Now get this straight. Wilson's no ordinary crook. He's a devil. He'd as soon kill a man as shake hands with him. He uses women and children as shields, and he's as slippery as an eel. We've had him cornered twenty times and he's wormed his way out.

"How do you know he won't do it again." Powell was wavering.

"Listen. We've got this lodge surrounded with armed officers. A mouse couldn't get through either way without our knowing it. When Wilson comes he'll be nabbed or shot down before he reaches the front door."

"Then what are you telling me all this for?" Powell grinned.

"Oh — because — something might slip," the detective grinned back. "Just thought I'd tip you off so you could stick a gat in your pocket. And also so you'd take good care of Mary. She's a nice kid."

NORDEN NEWS

Numerous trucks were held at the checking station just west of Truckee during last week's storm. When the highway department had made sufficient progress the "parade" of trucks lasted for several hours interspersed by automobiles through Norden.

For the first time in the history of the Southern Pacific Company last Wednesday afternoon a snow slide measured to the split second in trapping the last three pullman cars of the crack S. P. Pacific Limited passenger train No. 21 injuring eleven passengers. Dr. Bernard and a nurse from Truckee was rushed to the scene and administered first aid and accompanied the patients to Sacramento. Numerous slides have occurred in the near vicinity of last week's slide but have in the past been found in sufficient time to warn traffic, but on this occasion no warning was possible. Officials, employees and equipment have lived up to their past enviable record of assistance in the time of stress and many compliments have been forthcoming from the traveling public for the Southern Pacific Company's fine orginazation.

The Tourist Club Lodge at Norden has all available reservations booked well into March assuring all comers that plenty of snow will be on hand for their enjoyment.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bealls of Sacramento visited in Norden last week end.

ume, the hotel resorts and auto camps will face, instead of a beautiful lake, desolate stretches of wind-swept alkali beds. The property, in the opinion of the third district court of appeals, will be damaged from three-fourths to nine-tenths of its present value.

The City of Los Angeles objected to damage suits which awarded about $280,000 to nine property owners adjacent to the lake and creeks, on the ground that the water in the lake was unfit for human consumption and therefore the city should avoid payment of substantial damages.

The appellate court, however, upheld a lower court ruling that in the interests of justice, property rights of individuals should be carefully guarded. It agreed that $280,000 was not too much to pay for ruining the resorts and property located near the scenic lake.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Oates announce the birth of a son today in Richmond. The baby weighed eight pounds. Mother and child are reported as doing nicely.
